

Free Speech at UNC 2019

Annual report on free speech and institutional neutrality in the UNC System

Thomas Connor

Executive Summary

In 2017, the North Carolina legislature passed House Bill 527 (now State Law 2017-196) in order to foster free, open inquiry in the state's colleges and universities. One of the provisions ordered the University of North Carolina system Board of Governors to produce an annual report on two major categories of intellectual freedom: free speech and institutional neutrality.

This report is the Martin Center's own analysis of free speech and institutional neutrality on the UNC system's 16 campuses. The report examines universities' choices for summer reading assignments and commencement speakers, whether they make public statements on controversial topics like climate change and diversity, the content of freshman orientation sessions, and universities' mission statements. It also records any barriers to student and faculty speech as well as any known disruptions or incidents that curtailed free speech in the past year.

Findings

To complete this report, the Martin Center consulted schools' websites and newspaper articles. We also contacted student groups to determine whether they experienced any difficulties exercising their rights to free expression.

The results of the Martin Center's analysis of free speech and institutional neutrality are below, organized by campus.

“All events taking place outdoors, held in venues holding 500 people or more, and/or requiring tickets sales/distribution are considered Major Events. These events often require extensive logistical needs, including but not limited to staging, sound/light equipment, campus security, musical performance/theatrical productions, etc. All persons/organizations planning major events must complete and submit the notice requirement to the University Event Center no less than thirty (30) business days prior to the proposed event date. No exceptions.”

“5.7.1 Occasionally, events occur which demand immediate public outcry (“unscheduled use”). It is not the intent of the University to limit students’ and University employees’ right to assemble or protest when such events occur. Unscheduled uses may occur by University Groups, Student Groups, students, and University employees provided that the activity does not interfere with University activities as described in this Policy or any events or functions for which that the occupied space has been reserved in advance.”

“5.7.2 Although not required, to further the effectiveness of the unscheduled use, University Groups, Student Organization Groups, students, and University employees are encouraged to contact University Event Center and Campus Police to provide notification about the activity. Advance notification enables the University to help ensure that the activity does not conflict with a reserved or scheduled use, takes place in a constructive manner, the event is effective, to safeguard the participants’ safety, and to assist organizers in seeing that the activity does not disrupt the University’s educational activities and essential processes.”

6. Freshman Orientation: “Personal Safety, Social Responsibility and Civil Discourse” is possibly controversial.
7. Mission Statements: No controversy.

B. Barriers to Free Speech

1. FIRE rating: Yellow
2. Controversial Policies:

Outdoor Area and Exterior Space Use Policy (Protest and Demonstration Policies; August 2, 2019):

Persons shall not engage in unlawful speech such as threatening or abusive speech, or intimidating conduct towards any other person.

Assemblies with an expected attendance of more than 25 people must be reported no less than 48 hours in advance to the University police.

University groups may conduct activities and assemblies without prior approval at any exterior campus location provided the assembly/activity aligns with the requirements in section III above and the space is not required to be reserved.

Resident Student Handbook: Community Creed (Policies Restricting Freedom of Conscience; August 2, 2019):

The University of North Carolina at Asheville is a community of scholars dedicated to personal and academic excellence and growth. In joining this learning community, I commit to a code of civilized behavior.

I will practice personal ethics and academic integrity

I will honor the dignity of all persons

I will respect the rights of others

I will promote and practice inclusion and actively engage in learning about other cultures

I will actively show concern for others, their feelings, and their need for conditions, which support their work and development.

Allegiance to these ideals requires me to demonstrate behaviors that foster and support the freedom and respect of every individual in my community

Sexual Harassment Policy (Harassment Policies; August 2, 2019):

Environmental Sexual Harassment – Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal and physical conduct of a sexual nature constitute “environmental sexual harassment” when such conduct has the purpose or effect of creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment which unreasonably interferes with another’s work, academic performance or privacy. Environmental harassment can inflict emotional and psychological harm on individuals and can make relationships and the work or study environment unpleasant, threatening and unproductive. However, there is no requirement that evidence of actual emotional or physiological harm be shown in order for environmental sexual harassment to be found to have occurred.

In determining whether alleged conduct constitutes sexual harassment as defined in the policy, the record as a whole will be considered as well as the context in which the conduct occurred. “Environmental sexual harassment” normally arises from a repeated or pervasive course of conduct, whereas “bargained-for sexual harassment” can be based on a single act.

Electronic Harassment, Threats, Stalking, and Similar Activities (Internet Usage Policies; August 2, 2019):

- A. Users may not use electronic communications to harass, stalk, or threaten others, or in similar ways create an atmosphere which unreasonably interferes with the education or employment experience.
- B. This would include, but not be limited to, posting, transmitting, or originating any unlawful, threatening, abusive, hostile, fraudulent or defamatory communication, or any communication where the message, or its transmission or distribution, would constitute or would encourage conduct that would constitute a criminal offense, give rise to civil liability, or otherwise violate any local, state, national, or international law or violate other policies, rules and regulations of the University. Information that is defamatory is defined as provably false, unprivileged statements that do demonstrated injury to an individual's or a business's reputation.
- C. Disruptions/Violations of Free Speech
1. Shout-downs: None known.
 2. Disinvites: There was an attempt last year to disinvite the keynote speaker, Tamika Mallory because of comments and conduct that were deemed anti-semitic. The university upheld its decision to invite her.

College Handbook: Student Code of Conduct: Sexual Harassment (Harassment Policies; August 6, 2018)

Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct when: ... such conduct unreasonably affects or interferes with an individual's academic or work performance or creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive environment.

College Handbook: Appendix F: Content of Posters and Disseminated Materials (Posting and Distribution Policies; August 6, 2018)

All posters must clearly note the group, business, person, or organization responsible for the posting with full name and accurate contact information. The posting date must be designated on the poster. Posters that do not have the full information described above will be removed immediately.

Prohibited Harassment Procedure (Harassment Policies; August 6, 2018)

III. Definition of sexual harassment

Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct.

A. Examples of types of conduct

Sexual harassment is a form of discrimination, and can take two forms: quid pro quo and hostile environment. ... Hostile environment harassment occurs when unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature is sufficiently serious that it affects a student's ability to participate in or benefit from an education program or activity, or creates an intimidating, threatening or abusive educational environment. A hostile environment can be created by a school employee, another student, or even someone visiting the school, such as a student or employee from another school.

This report is published by the James G. Martin Center for Academic Renewal.

As a private, educational nonprofit focused on public policy, the Martin Center works to renew and fulfill the promise of higher education. We are dedicated to promoting knowledge over credentials, restoring genuine liberal learning, and ensuring that public investment in higher education provides value to students, taxpayers, and society.

We advocate responsible governance, viewpoint diversity, academic quality, cost-effective education solutions, and market-based reform. We do that by studying and reporting on critical issues in higher education and recommending policies that can create change—especially at the state and local level. We are located in Raleigh, North Carolina and have a special focus on our home state.

In these endeavors, we are motivated by the principles that have traditionally guided American public policy: limits on government; freedom to pursue goals through voluntary means; accountability through private property rights and contracts; and the belief that competition is an excellent regulating force.
